The International Conference on Natural Products 2016 (ICNP2016) is an annual conference of the Malaysian Natural Product Society (MNPS). This conference is poised to become the biggest avenue in the world for members of the scientific community involved in natural product or natural products related disciplines to discuss and share their latest findings. This conference will not only address local or regional issues but international ones as well in order to meet a broad range of global challenges and to promote stronger links amongst researchers and practitioners through knowledge creation and global sharing. Therefore, the theme for ICNP2016 is 'Meeting the Needs of a Changing World through Natural Product Biodiscovery'.

The host for ICNP2016 is Universiti Malaysia Terengganu (UMT), the only institution of higher learning in Malaysia that is specifically dedicated to the study of oceans and aquatic resources. It is a little known fact that Malaysia possesses more sea than land under its territory, and that the waters surrounding Southeast Asia contain the most concentrated levels of biodiversity in marine organisms of which the majority remains unexplored. Therefore, marine biodiversity provides a gold mine for structurally-diverse and biologically-active secondary metabolites. In this context, ICNP2016 is unique that marine natural products will also be given the same breadth of priority as terrestrial fauna and flora based on the number of invited speakers.

UMT is proud to be the host of ICNP2016, which will be held in Kuala Terengganu, Terengganu from 15-17 March 2016.
